

Subject: What the phrase "Federal Court" means...

Here is something you might want to share.

We in America have what is called a Federal District Court. These courts are the lowest courts in the federal court system, (excluding the federal bankruptcy courts.)

The word "Federal" comes from the Latin word "foedus," meaning "Foul, hideous, revolting, vile, disgraceful, filthy, disgusting, or repulsive."

The word District comes from the Latin: districtus and distringere. Further break down reveals that dis- (prefix) means "rich, having or containing or bringing wealth."

Dis- is also a name of "Pluto, god of the Lower World."

On the other hand, -trictus (suffix) has the meaning: "nonsense; vexation, troubles; [to] behave in an evasive manner; trifle/delay/dally; [to] cause trouble; [to] pull/play tricks."

Distringere means to "stretch out/apart; detain; distract; pull in different directions."

Therefore, a Federal District Court is a foul, hideous, revolting, vile, disgraceful, filthy, disgusting, or repulsive court of Pluto, a demon god, used to bring wealth through all sorts of nonsense, vexation, troubles, evasiveness, trifling, delays, dallying, troubles, and tricks; all employed to stretch apart, detain, distract, and pull in different directions - the parties of the litigation.

The University of Notre Dame Latin Dictionary Online.

<http://archives.nd.edu/latgramm.htm>